REGISTRAR'S NOTES ON NAMES IN THIS SUPPLEMENT

<sup>1</sup> Vanda Boris. A mericlone of this grex is sold as Vanda 'Yellow Krean Kai', which is how it appeared as a parent on the registration application for Vanda Nathaphat Gold Spot. This name is a partial translation of 'Lueang Krieng Kai', where "Lueang" means yellow, and Krieng Kai is the name of the person who produced the mericlone.

Nomenclatural notes

Epithets commemorating George Ure Skinner

The English merchant and plant collector George Ure Skinner (1804–1867) first visited Guatemala in 1831 and, apart from occasional visits to the UK (he made the sea crossing 29 times), remained there for 35 years and sent numerous collections to John Lindley. Skinner was responsible for introducing about 100 species to UK cultivation and was commemorated by Lindley in several eponyms, including the genus Uroskinnera Lindl. (Plantaginaceae) Gard. Chron. 1857(3): 36 (17 Jan 1857).

Like Linnaeus before him, Lindley had strongly held views on the naming of genera, stating in 1839:

'So impossible is it to construct generic names that will express the peculiarities of the species they represent, that I agree with those who think a good, well-sounding, unmeaning name as good as any that can be contrived. The great rule to follow is this: In constructing a generic name, take care that it is harmonious and as unlike all other generic names as it can be. We therefore trust that verbal pedants will not quarrel with the manner in which we have contrived to escape from the difficulty of there being already a Skinneria in the Botanical field, but agree with us that Ure Skinner may be fairly blended into a name which shall unmistakably recorded the labours of one who ought never to be confounded with any other Skinner whatsoever.'

Therefore Lindley, having used skinneri as an epithet, decided to use Uroskinnera for a genus in 1857, named after George Ure Skinner. About two years later he used the same spelling for epithets. It seems that euphony was the reason for forming the genus name and epithets as uroskinneri, rather than ureskinneri. Several plant species, including Lycaste skinneri Lindl. (now Lycaste virginalis) used his surname, but Lindley also devised epithets combining one of his given names and surname, as uroskinneri, as he had with the genus above. This was first used as a species epithet for Odontoglossum uroskinneri Lindl., Gard. Chro. 1859: 708–709 (27 August 1859) & 1859: 724–725 (03 September 1859), now known as Rhynchostele ureskinneri (Lindl.) Soto Arenas & Salazar. The spelling uro-skinneri was also sometimes used.

ICN Art. 60 requires uroskinneri to be corrected, because the orthographic rules for genera differ to those for epithets, so while Uroskinnera can be retained, uroskinneri cannot. This is now reflected in the recent change of Rhynchostele uroskinneri to Rhynchostele ureskinneri in WCSP and IPNI, a change initiated by Rafael Govaerts.

It follows that the spelling of all the synonymous combinations changes, too:

Odontoglossum ureskinneri Lindl., Gard. Chron. 1859: 708 (27 August 1859) [as uroskinneri].

Lemboglossum ureskinneri (Lindl.) Halb., Orquidea (Mexico City), n.s., 9: 349 (1984).

Amparoa ureskinneri (Lindl.) Archila, Revista Guatemalensis 12(2): 27 (2009).

Paphiopedilum* Lady Isabel changes to Lady Isobel

In the notes from the Orchid Committee in Proceedings of the Royal Horticultural Society for 7 September, 1897, the name of this Paphiopedilum is rendered "Lady Isobel" (Journal of the Royal Horticultural Society, Vol 21: clxxxii). Given the recorded registration date of 01 January 1897, this is probably one of the earliest published references to the hybrid.

It seems plausible that the hybrid was named after Lady Isobel Stanley, daughter of the 16th Earl of Derby. Thomas Statter, who registered the hybrid, had connections to the Stanley family, his father and grandfather were agents for the Earls of Derby, and he registered Paphiopedilum Lord Derby a couple of years before naming a Paphiopedilum after Lady Isobel.

Dealing with various interpretations of Tolumnia pulchella in the Register

Ruben Saulea and Claude Hamilton in New World Orchid. Nomencl. Notes 53: 1–11 (2019) demonstrated that Tolumnia x pulchella is the earliest available name for the hybrid swarm between Tolumnia guttata and Tolumnia hamiltonii, for which the name Tolumnia x jamaicensis had been used in the Register previously. In addition, the parent they describe as Tolumnia hamiltonii has sometimes erroneously been regarded as Tolumnia pulchella. Other alternative interpretations and applications of the name Tolumnia pulchella have also appeared from time to time. Hence many registered grexes with Tolumnia pulchella as a recorded parent are now of uncertain parentage. This is indicated by the use of Tolumnia pulchella ambig. (for ambiguous).
